

During the AALL Virtual Members Open Forum, as well as at AALL 2024 in Chicago, many of you had questions about the status of the AALL materials. As a 118-year-old Association, I want to reassure you that we are very proud of our legacy. We recognize the importance of preserving our rich history, and the current process will ensure we are protecting the right materials.

For you to better understand the status of the AALL materials, we created this . This resource provides responses to ongoing questions. Please see for some additional details.
